

THE MONUMENT QUILT

force upsetting rape culture

The Monument Quilt is coming to the National Mall May 31-June 2, 2019

The Monument Quilt, a project of FORCE based in Baltimore, is an ongoing collection of stories by survivors of sexual and intimate partner violence and our allies written, painted, and stitched onto red fabric. Our stories literally blanket highly public, outdoor places to create and demand space to heal, and resist a singular narrative about sexual violence. The Monument Quilt was launched in 2013, and over the past five years FORCE has collected nearly 3,000 squares of the quilt with messages of affirmation and stories from survivors. We've partnered with over 100 organizations across the country to organize 49 Quilt displays in 33 different cities.

The Monument Quilt has received national coverage through MSNBC and Refinery 29, including of our art actions at Standing Rock and in solidarity with Marissa Alexander. We continue to receive local coverage during Monument Quilt workshops and events organized by our partners, such as this article in the Alton Telegraph. Video from our 2014 tour can be seen here, and footage from our hometown, Baltimore, is here.

Be part of history.

As we have traveled across the U.S and Mexico, local anti-violence organizations have supported the transport, programming, and display of the Monument Quilt. We now seek partnership with DC-based local and national organizations to make this seminal event a success!

From the start, our vision has always been to encase the National Mall - the iconic landscape for many meaningful and inspiring actions to give voice to those previously silenced - for a culminating event, displaying the beauty and strength of the voices of survivors and their allies. After 5 years of organizing and holding healing spaces for survivors, that vision will be realized May 31-June 2, 2019 -- but we need your help!

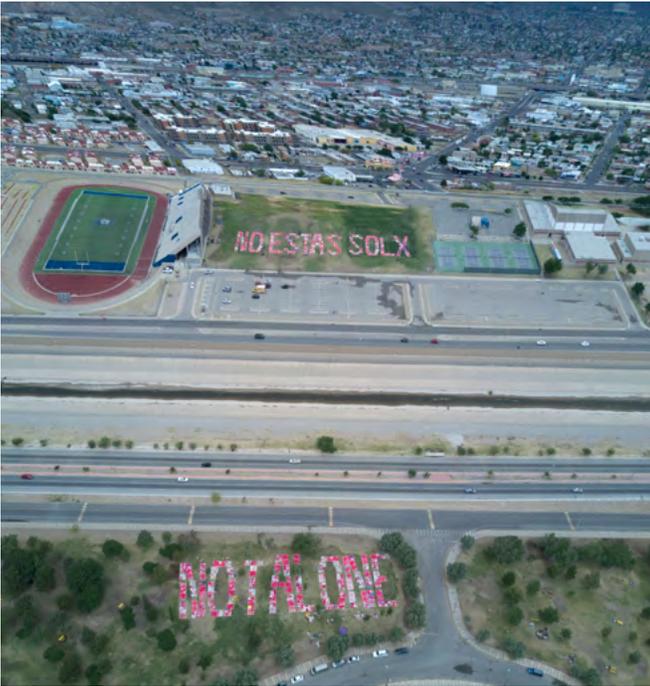

Read on for more on what partnership means.
